DZUKANI – The Wakeup Call

A Powerful Leadership Tool for All Leaders

13 July 2011, Wednesday | 9.00am to 12.00pm | SHRI @ The Verge, Training Room 4

“Dzukani” means “wake up” in a Malawi tribal language.

We’re inspired by Nelson Mandela, Mahatma Gandhi, Winston Churchill, Martin Luther King and other great leaders who shifted the energy of their times and created amazing and lasting transformation that impacted their countries and the world. They did so by acknowledging and using rather than ignoring the emotions and tensions of the people.

We therefore created our Dzukani Leadership and Coaching Methodology to address all situations in groups and organizations, including the underlying currents that block the potentially tremendous success that can be enjoyed.

We expertly apply this leading-edge technology to powerfully awaken all untapped talent and potential in groups and organizations, and help you create:

- ✓ Authentic leadership, shifting from effectiveness to greatness
- ✓ High-performance leaders, executives and staff
- ✓ High-powered, high-energy and inspired teams
- ✓ The bottom-line results you want

Come experience our innovative approach which encourages the leader in everyone to emerge “through spontaneous and intuitive natural self-expression”. Our clients have described our work as being:

- ✓ “Profoundly transformational” and
- ✓ Capable of “uncovering latent talent by eliminating blocks to peak performance, ultimately impacting bottom line”

Speakers' Profile

Clive Wilson is deputy chairman and Head of Talent Liberation of Primeast in the UK - www.primeast.com. He is a writer, speaker and business coach specializing in the release of potential.
